SRI LANKA - RAPIDLY EXPANDING MARKET

The country's furniture sector has the capacity of expanding the market, both locally and globally, with the local makers successfully combine the use of local raw material with latest technology. Traditionally furniture in Sri Lanka developed as cottage based industry. It is in early 90's moved to mechanized mass production oriented industries. Since then furniture businesses began to grow with modern machinery, innovative designs and use of diverse materials.

The wood-based manufacturing sector in Sri Lanka depends almost entirely on the local wood supply for raw materials. The sector is diverse, consisting of a variety of industries including saw milling, furniture, construction, parquet flooring, wood-based panel products, and carvings.

Many wood products are exported from Sri Lanka including broom handles and brush blocks, parquet for flooring, hardwood plywood, household utility items, wooden toys, carvings and ornaments, household furniture, office furniture, and furniture in ready-to-assembly form. Other miscellaneous wood products exported include table lamps, skipping rope handles, rulers, and handicrafts.

The wood based industry is spread all over the country 95% of the industry is dominated by the private sector with less government involvement. The solid wood products outlook for the 2013 to 2018 examines an overall tightening of the global timber supply base. It outlines an exponential growth in demand for timber in the United States and China. It is also estimated that there are over 9000 furniture and other wood working industrial plants in the country scattered in and around Colombo which yield great opportunities for the industry. The wood based manufacturing sector of Sri Lanka depends all most on the local wood supply for raw materials. The sector is diverse, consisting of a variety of industries including Saw milling, Furniture, Construction, Parquet, Flooring, Wood-Based panel products and Carvings. Sri Lanka is competitive in exporting especially office furniture, bedroom furniture and kitchen furniture to the world market and it is competent in producing such items to the high end of the market.
